Dear Marilyn,

I wanted to give you a fresh thank you and update pertaining to the Tulalip Tribes' support of Kids Co.'s Hungry Kid Initiative – a campaign to end hunger in our centers by ensuring all kids get the healthy food they need while in our care!

With your [REDACTED] grant, the Tulalip Tribes has helped bump up the nutritious snacks we provide to our two most economically and socially diverse centers: Kids Co. at Graham Hill and Kids Co. at South Shore, both in South Seattle.

Although it is part of our core agenda to serve healthy alternatives to our students, we find these two centers have an additional hurdle in assisting their students- poverty. One of our program managers shared that often her kids come to school with nothing other than crackers to eat. Thanks to kind and generous organizations, like the Tulalip Tribes, Kids Co. has the enhanced funding to bump up these snacks to mini-meals so their stomachs are full. To further our efforts we teach the kids basic cooking skills that they can use throughout their live or even at home with their family!

Attached are some of our Kids Co. at Graham Hill preschool kids enjoying the fruits of their labors. Yes, even kids as young as 3 can learn how to cook the right way!

Please let me know if you 'd like additional information.

Wholeheartedly,
Amanda
