RE: Q3 2019 4.2 report

Dear Marilyn,

I am pleased to submit this report for the $ [REDACTED] sponsorship from Tulalip Tribes for our 17th Annual Bridge Conference this fall with Dr. Stephanie A. Fryberg, a member of the Tulalip Tribes of Washington State.

Dr. Fryberg was the keynote speaker for the conference's opening plenary session, which focused on how social representations of race, culture, and social class influence the development of self, psychological well-being, physical health, and educational attainment. Her moving presentation energized the 595 attendees and encompassed the conference's theme Looking Back, Facing Forward.

In total, there were 79 total breakout sessions and three keynotes, all of which helped participants explore the importance of culture and the role it plays in shaping and empowering young people and their communities. Keynote sessions helped participants navigate through the theme by helping individuals look at history, research, and approaches for showing up and supporting young people with a lens that affirms young people's intersectional identities.

For the third year in a row, we had an all women set of keynote speakers who represented three different regions of the country: Washington state, Georgia, and California. The conference evaluation showed that all speakers were very well-received.

Evaluations also show that the conference provided valuable insight and ideas to attendees:

- 92 percent of attendees agreed or strongly agreed that the conference was a valuable experience.
- 93 percent agreed or strongly agreed that they increased their knowledge and/or skills as a result of the conference.
- 94 percent agreed or strongly agreed that they could apply the information learned at the conference to the diversity of communities they serve.
- 92 percent said the content of the three keynote speakers was excellent or good.

Specific comments from this year's attendees include:

"It was a powerful conference and I gained so much valuable information that I can apply to my life and with youth."

"Very well organized. Today's participation gave me a feeling of being renewed and healed! This work is exhausting and this was a great opportunity to refuel."

"Always the best conference to attend year after year, and you get better and better!"

"This was an amazing two days! Very informational and the vibes were wonderful. Every presenter was very open but still kind to everyone's culture and individuality."

"It was a powerful conference and I gained so much valuable information that I can apply to my life and with youth."

"The conference itself was FULL of HELPFUL information. I felt honored to be surrounded by so many different people, from many different backgrounds and culture. I was amazed by the powerful messages that were shared by the Keynote speakers."

Thank you again for the generous support of our conference which gives new energy and ideas to youth workers across the state.

Sincerely,
