Re: Q4 2013 14.2

Dear Marilyn,

Thank you very much again for Tulalip Tribes' generous financial support of [REDACTED] to support eviction prevention assistance. We have striven to be excellent stewards of your generosity. I am writing to update you regarding your grant's impact upon the SVdP's Eviction Prevention Program and the outcomes you've helped this program to achieve in this past year. We would love to have our website URL on Tulalip Charitable Contributions' website. Our URL is: www.svdpsseattle.org.

The goals we expected in FY2014 to be accomplished by SVdP's Eviction Prevention Program were:

1. 1,600 low income households – approximately 2,900 people – would be assisted to stay housed in the face of eviction;
2. At least $250,000 in financial assistance would be provided to low income clients;
3. Over 12,000 households would be visited and provided with emergency assistance (food, beds, bus vouchers, clothing vouchers to SVdP thrift stores, utility or rent assistance).

With Tulalip Charitable Contributions' support, SVdP was able to exceed its goals in FY2014. Our outcomes were:

1. 2,210 low income households – approximately 3,200 people – were assisted to stay in their homes to avoid eviction and homelessness;
2. $338,357 in financial assistance was provided to low income clients to avoid eviction;
3. Over 12,435 households were visited and provided with emergency assistance (food, beds, bus vouchers, clothing vouchers to SVdP thrift stores, utility or rent assistance).

SVdP accomplished this work with three coordinated services:

Phone Helpline: Our hotline is staffed with both paid staff members and volunteers, all of whom are trained to provide compassionate, effective emergency referral services. In total, SVdP was able to answer approximately 48,673 helpline calls in fiscal year 2014. Crisis Clinic has for the past nine years referred more 2-1-1 assistance calls to St. Vincent's than any other social service agency in King County. Crisis Clinic refers 7,000 more calls to us than its next-most-referred agency, Catholic Community Services.

Conferences: We recruit, train and work alongside over 1,000 volunteer Vincentians who made 12,435 home visits last year. Through their visits, people in poverty were assisted through crises that included the threat of eviction, heat and other utility shut-offs, hunger, lack of beds and other necessary furniture, and a need for human connection.

Direct Assistance: To assist families that live in low-income areas where the local Conference cannot provide financial assistance, SVdP operates its Direct Assistance Program (DAP). Direct Assistance staff assist with rent, utility shut-offs, food, beds, and other needs. Last year, DAP gave 241 households (476 people) eviction prevention financial assistance, and kept those people in their homes.

I've attached photographs of clients currently being assisted by our eviction prevention assistance, to give you a clearer understanding of the impact your funds are having on people in our region.

Thank you very much again! We are very grateful for your support.

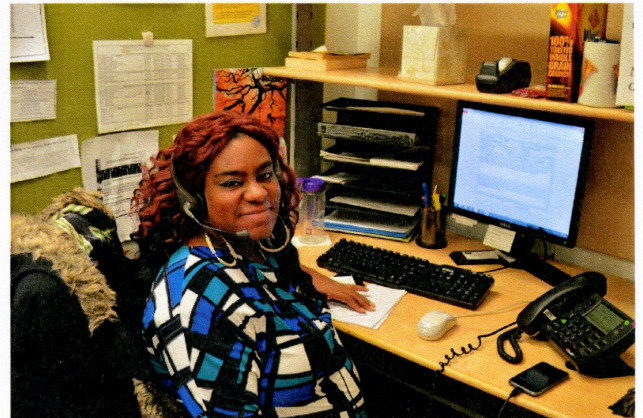

Sincerely,

Ned Delmore
Executive Director

Our case management team works with Chief Seattle Club to assist Native Americans in need of eviction prevention and other services.

SVdP Helpline counselors assist people in need. Clients reach SVdP through 2-1-1, community nonprofit partners, and local Catholic parishes

SVdP volunteers (Vincetians) make "home visits" to understand people's needs and provide assistance.
